Dear Colleague,

We have the pleasure of inviting you to the 10th Central European Winter Seminar of Regional Science that will take place in the mountain resort on March 11th to 14th 2020 at Pension Pribisko in Zuberec, Slovakia (GPS coordinates 49.256843, 19.635485). Please find more information about the resort at penzionpribisko.sk.

In an attractive mountain environment and very relaxed atmosphere, we would like to build new generations of networks of regional scientists in Europe. This year's invited speaker of the winter seminar 2020 are Eveline van Leeuwen (Wageningen University, NL) and Katarzyna Kopczewska (University of Warsaw, PL).

Eveline van Leeuwen, Wageningen University
Keynote speaker of the Winter Seminar

Eveline van Leeuwen graduated in Land Use Planning (MSc) at the Wageningen University in 2002 and obtained a PhD in Economics at VU Amsterdam. She is now affiliated to Wageningen University as professor and chairholder of the Urban Economics group. Eveline has a broad interest in economic and social interactions between places at the regional and urban level and how these interactions impact wellbeing/happiness; economic activities and participation. In her research, she focusses on the integration of micro- and macro approaches in the field of regional science. Linking agent-based modelling and microsimulation, with macro models is an important common thread. This novel approach was rewarded with two best paper awards and resulted in several invited presentations. Eveline serves as Vice-President of European Regional Science Association.

Katarzyna Kopczewska, University of Warsaw
Keynote speaker of the Winter Seminar

As a quantitative economist, Katarzyna Kopczewska deals with spatial modeling of geo-localized economic processes - location and co-location, agglomeration, concentration, diffusion, spatial interactions in relation to economic phenomena, companies, real estate, but also regional policy or public sector activities. She conducts methodological research on the implementation of data science methods for spatial analysis and combining them with classical spatial statistics and econometrics. She runs models in R and combines quantitative solutions with theory and problems of regional science and economic geography. Her interest is in geo-marketing issues, quantitative research on the effects of regional policy, location and co-location of companies, real estate valuation, and in the quantitative method in bootstrap and Monte Carlo as a big data solution and statistics for spatial distributions.

We welcome papers from following themes, but also those that cut across suggested topics:

- Agglomeration and Industrial Clusters • Local and Regional Development Strategies and Policies
- Creative Industries, Creative Cities and Regions • Regional Labor Market and Migration
- Evolution, Institutions and Economic Change • Universities and Economic Development of Regions
- Entrepreneurship and Innovation • Urban Development and Urban Change
- European Cohesion Policy and its Evaluation • Public Administration and Management

Accepted articles will be published in the conference proceedings "10th Central European Winter Seminar of Regional Science 2020" with ISBN.
